Paris! Oh, No— Carmel-by-the-Sea

Eleanor Taylor Houghton of Pasadena, not so long ago a sojourner here, was so impressed with Carmel that when she returned to her home she wrote to the editor of the New York Literary Review as follows:

> Return to the city, write of the country. The someone who said that was very right. Nostalgia's a driving urge. * * * Back in the south of California its north still clings to me. My eyes see whimsical pepper palms, orange and fig trees. But I see instead droll dwarfish Monterey cypress with green weather-flattened tops underscored with red rust, pines and firs, the milk-white, fine-powered sand of the dunes, a craggy coast, and the Mediterranean blue Pacific. My ears hear the scream of locomotives—than which nothing suggests more acutely the futility and transitoriness of things—the throb of motor traffic, the whirring of private lawn sprinklers, kiddies roller skating on the pavements. But I sense again the salt wind in moss-draped pines, the ocean's rhythmic beat on an immaculate shore; or the lazy, loose pushing of waves shuffling lazily along a friendless beach; or the "prinking" little footfalls of quail in the scattering of pine needle on the roof. Back in the southland's city I think endlessly of Monterey.
>
> There's an anodyne for such nostalgia—at least for some of us. And that's a cloistered path of the library. The chance to sweep up the crisp dried literary leaves of summer into hurried little autumn piles for quick raking over. * * * So with the thought of Carmel, Monterey County, in my heart and the "Saturday Review" of September 20th in my hand, and my eye on Ford Madox Ford's article on the migration of the Young American Writer to Paris everything somehow gets all mixed up
>
> Is Mr. Ford as utterly right as he sounds? I wonder. He has never been to Carmel-by-the-Sea. It's very obvious. There—and he should come one day and see for himself—the dear young writer may live ever so cheaply, paying only a few sous for rent. He may live blissfully undisturbed in warm fragrant clearings among the pines or in the hollows of the dunes. Even the crass non-literary—merchants and summer people included—are sweetly indulgent waiting month in, month out, until their artistic tenants have sold a picture, a story, an etching. They dote with genuine enthusiasm on the artist or writer—when he lets them know him. They give him quick sympathy when their temperaments let them follow him. When he goes where they cannot follow they allow him ungrudgingly a superior understanding.
>
> There in Carmel-by-the-Sea a house is not essential. I learned that this summer. A young poet—puppet master and actor to boot—slept his summer nights in a cozy sleeping bag under the welcoming stage of the open air Forest Theatre. In the austere rustic dressing rooms two other artists enjoyed free rent. And the poet made deep really-truly poems and funny little ones about how they all lived so happily. There was one of daringly domestic aroma, "Dishes, pots, pans I am alone at the center," or something like that.
>
> So what Mr. Ford said does not apply to Carmel, how the American writer has to migrate to Paris or else live "in an embattled minority in the midst of an embittered and hostile tribe of savages." Carmel is not thus, but a delightful alternative to Paris, as far from America as is the French capital itself. And in its own salty, foggy, sandy way it's a counter irritant to Paris—ask any one who has been to both places. So I repeat it for Mr. Ford that Carmel-by-the-Sea is one American locality—and I suspect there are others did one but search sincerely—where the "arts are held in some honor."

Mission Play to Be Made Gift to California

With the dawn of the New Year comes the official announcement that John Steven McGroarty, beloved poet, playwright and historian, has entered into an arrangement by which his immortal Mission Play at San Gabriel will become the property of the people.

The details of the arrangement are of vital interest to the public for the reason that the gift is so noble and of such importance to every man, woman and child in the State.

The Mission Play is the soul of California—the greatest and the most enduring dramatic production in all history. Its success and its lasting hold on the souls of the people is without parallel in the annals of drama.

The conditions attached to Mr. McGroarty's proposed gift are of a nature to appeal to the highest impulses of the people, and there can be no doubt that the public will respond with wholehearted enthusiasm to the appeal being made by the organization that has been formed to bring the proposition to realization.

This organization has been duly chartered under the laws of the State of California with the corporate title of the "Society of the Golden Scroll." It is a non-profit corporation, which is to say that its members derive no profit and undertake no financial obligations.

What the Society of the Golden Scroll proposes to do is to raise sufficient funds to complete the partially erected new Mission Playhouse at San Gabriel as a first step, to put the Mission Play in a splendid, permanent home that will endure for all time to come and that will stand as the most unique structure of its kind in the world.

When this has been done the Society of the Golden Scroll will then own forever the Mission Play, its grounds and buildings, its copyright, scenery, costumes and everything else that it now has or will have in the future. The Society of the Golden Scroll will perpetuate itself down through the ages, each generation of California, native and adopted, taking the place of the generation that precedes it.

Clear and free of debt, forever safely housed in its own beautiful home, the Mission Play will be made safe against the onslaughts of time throughout the centuries to come.

Now, when all this comes to pass, the declared object of the Society of the Golden Scroll is to devote the profits of the Mission Play, and also the revenues derived otherwise by the Society, to the preservation of the old Missions of California. Wind and rain and the vandal years have already totally destroyed two of the Missions. Two others are fast passing into nothingness, and all are in danger of annihilation. We, as Californians, have been standing idly by while this destruction has been going on. And we are taking the awful chance of being held in contempt by those who are to follow in our footsteps when we pass.

But here is the solution of the whole vexed, long-standing problem—The Society of the Golden Scroll.

The Society—a legally constituted and responsible non-profit corporation which perpetuates itself—opens the way for us all to help. It opens the way for him who can give but little and for him who can and should give much. The large contributor is guaranteed that the money he contributes will go to the object for which he gave it. The small contributor is assured of the joy of having performed a service to his state, to his fellow-man, and to history.

The various classes of membership in the Society of the Golden Scroll are as follows:-

Benefactors—$5,000 or more.
Founders—$1,000.
Life Members—$100.
Sustaining Members—$25.
Annual Members—$5.00.
Junior Members—$1.00.

The annual members in addition to their fee of $5.00 agree to pay $1.00 each year as an annual due. The Junior Membership is for boys and girls without further obligation.

The Board of Directors in control of the Society of the Golden Scroll is composed of the following:

W. I. Hollingsworth, President; Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick, vice-president; P. W. Croake, secretary; Gilbert M. Furman, treasurer; W. P. Whitsett, John G. Mott and Mrs Grantland Seton Long, directors, completing the Board. The Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Los Gatos has been designated as the depository of all funds.

The Society of the Golden Scroll has already begun operations and is meeting with a degree of success which was naturally to be anticipated. Funds have already begun to come in to the headquarters which are located in the office of John G. Mott, 1215 Citizens National Bank Building, Los Angeles. Inquiries can be directed there or to the office of the Mission Play at San Gabriel by all who desire to enlist in the great cause, to contribute and become members of the Society or to assist in its organization throughout the various communities of the State.

Carmel Baseball Mogul Arrives from the East

Charles King Van Riper, the Judge Landis of the local Abalone League, with Mrs. Helen Van Riper, has returned to Carmel. He promises to put all the Ban Johnsons hereabouts out of business. Van and his wife tried hard to get here for Boxing Day and for "What Happened to Jones," but just couldn't make it.

When they drove into town they made straight for the "La Playa;" what a surprise greeted them!

Anyway, now that Charlie is here, plans are being made for "The Carmel Follies," which goes on at Arts and Crafts in March. Only this must be taken into account: While in the east Charlie sold a play to David Belasco or Equity or Channing Pollock, and the buyer, whoever it was, threatens to put it on. Charlie feels that he should be on hand at the exercises, but Arthur Cyril is doing his durndest to talk him out of going through the ordeal. Here's hoping Duke Cyril will prevail.

Carmel Humane Society Holds Interesting Meet

By Eunice T. Gray

The Carmel Humane Society held its regular January meeting on Wednesday, the 14th, at Pine Inn.

Routine business was attended to; the resignation of Miss Alice McChesney as treasurer was accepted with regret, and Miss McChesney's report for the past year was read and accepted.

The society has withdrawn its petition to the city trustees for city support and the maintenance of an animal shelter for strays. Hereafter the humane society will take up cases of cruelty, suffering or neglect and all such cases should be reported to the society's officer, Miss Louise Conger.

All stray animals or public nuisances should hereafter be reported to the city authorities. In a later issue of the Pine Cone there will be an account of the way in which the city plans to take care of the problem of homeless cats, dogs and horses.

City cat and dog taxes are now due [illegible] will be turned to Mr. Englund as stated in another column.

The Palo Alto Humane Society presented a very interesting program for the benefit of school children last week. It was preceded by a parade of pets escorted by cadets from the Palo Alto Military Academy. The program was given near the Circle on University avenue and was addressed by Dr. David Starr Jordan, City Attorney Malcolm and Dr. E. R. Tait.

It has been brought to the attention of the local society that certain residents of Carmel have been annoyed by birds that eat the young plants in their gardens, and they have placed poisoned wheat in the garden to destroy the birds.

It will be much wiser and cheaper in the end for anyone who wishes to protect their garden from birds to purchase a few yards of wire netting and place over the garden. The birds will not risk the possible trap unless very hungry. As a further safeguard, scatter bread crumbs and table scrapings at a distance from the garden. The birds will soon make a practice of eating where the food is easy to find.

It is a felony under the state law to poison or shoot song birds in California. The resident State Humane Officer is authorized to make arrests of any persons breaking this law.

Why this constant emphasis upon destruction? One neighbor wants to kill his neighbor's dog because the dog kills cats; the next neighbor wants the cats shot because the cats catch birds; then here comes the man who wishes to kill the birds because the birds eat his lettuce and peas; along comes the war-maker and wants to kill the men who eat the lettuce and the—well, well, what a stupid, stupid world!

Suppose we all try to make something live for awhile. Put the emphasis where it belongs.

George Ball Announces His Group of Plays

The next thing on Carmel's dramatic calender will be an evening of one act plays presented by George Miller Ball. Mr. Ball has given much time and thought to the compiling of his program which promises to be a tremendously interesting one. He will give us Esther Gilbraith's "Brink of Silence," an intensely human drama set in a cabin at the very edge of the Antarctic Circle. The cast is made up of four men with Frederick Bechdolt in the leading role.

"Dregs," Frances Pemberton Spencer's crashingly dramatic playlet, will be played by Mr. Ball himself, supported by Katharine Cooke. And the humorous relief will be provided by Franz Molnar's delicious satire "The Man in the Cab".

For some time the old timers in Carmel's theatrical game have been crying out for the opportunity to work under a new director so they are enrolling under Mr. Ball's pennant with real enthusiasm. The bill which will be presented at the Arts and Crafts on January 30th and 31st, promises to be a truly noteworthy one.

Baseball Season Opens Tomorrow

Beginning its fifth year tomorrow afternoon, the Abalone League will hold a six-team competition for the Hooper cup. Heretofore the organization has consisted of four clubs, but increased interest in the weekly playground baseball games in Carmel Woods has necessitated expansion to a six-club organization.

The schedule will consist of ten games for every club, two against each of its competitors. Three seven-inning games will be played each week, the first commencing at 1 o'clock, the second at 2, and the final at 3 p.m. The new arrangement will require promptness on the part of teams in reporting for each game, but players have agreed to be right on the dot so the six-team system can be put over successfully.

Organization of the clubs just completed is as follows: "Seals," Talbert Josselyn, captain; "Goldfish," James Hopper, captain; "Whales," Eddie Burns, captain; "Sardines," Col. S. F. Dutton, captain; "Sandabs," G. M. Lewis, captain, and "Sharks," Winsor Josselyn, captain.

A feature of the league is Colonel Dutton's "Sardine" club. Since its organization the Abalone outfit has had a junior member on each team. These erstwhile juniors will go out on their own this season with a team that looks capable of carrying the fight to the other five clubs. They make their debut in the second game of the opening triple-header.

Here is the complete schedule for tomorrow:

1 o'clock—"Goldfish" vs. "Sharks."
2 o'clock—"Sardines" vs. "Whales."
3 o'clock—"Sandabs" vs. "Seals."

The membership of the six teams follows:

Hollison, Harrison Godwin and brother Fred, Ernest Schweninger, Winsor Josselyn and Mr. Roselyn [illegible], Jimmy Hopper, Mr. Douglas, Charles Berkey, Tom Hooper, Tom Douglas, Phil Wilson Jr., Byington Ford, Ned Lewis, Don Hale, Dick Johnson, Lee Gottfried and others.

Carmel Boys' Club

By Ida A. Johnson

Wednesday was election night, with a record attendance. Three belated boys were informed that there were no more chairs and that there were only refreshments for twenty-four, and that twenty-seven were already on hand, so they were obliged to wait for a more favorable time

Officers were elected for three months, as follows: President, John Rockwell; vice-president, Teddy Leidig; secretary, Dale Leidig.

The yell leader is to be appointed by the president.

The week before B. J. Segal opened the individual banks, and the final report was made of the money the boys had placed in savings banks during the year. The total came to over $1150, which was gratifying, for the 1923 total was $960, and the goal for 1924 was $1000. This money belongs to the boys. The importance of thrift is the end aimed at.

A tea for the benefit of St. Anne's Guild will be held next Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Wood, north Carmelo near Ocean avenue. This organization recently elected officers, as follows. President, Mrs. J. B. Dennis; vice-president, Mrs. Kissam Johnson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Overstreet.

PINE NEEDELS

The entertainment committee of the Arts and Crafts Club is planning an evening of mah jongg and bridge to be held on St. Valentine night, February 14.

On Thursday last August Englund completed the eightb year of his splendid service as City Marshal of Carmel. He and Louis S. Slevin are our oldest officials—in length of service.

An exhibition of forty paintings by Wm. P. Silva opens tomorrow in the Thomas Welton Stanford Art Gallery. The showing will continue until February 8. Mr. and Mrs. Silva went up to Palo Alto last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton P Foster returned from San Francisco recently, where they attended the funeral of Mr. Foster's mother, Mrs. S. A. Foster. The deceased was a native of Illinois and 84 years of age. She was long a resident of California.

The Manzanita Club, Carmel's pioneer social organization, recently held its annual meeting. Officers for 1925 were chosen, as follows: President, Robert Pearson; vice-president, Bernard Wetzel; secretary-treasurer, Louis S. Slevin.

J. H. Payne of Uplands, San Bernardino county, has bought lots 17 and 19 in block S, northwest corner of Seventh and Carmelo. Architect C. Sumner Greene has been commissioner to draw plans for a handsome residence.

Carmel's representatives in the State legislature, Senator C. C. Baker and Assemblyman Dayton, are O. K. So says John B. Jordan, who was in Sacramento when the session opened. Both men voted "aye" on the child labor amendment.

Mrs. Louis W. Peck of Hollywood announces the marriage of her daughter Dorothy Louise to Lee Schuyler Quackenbush of New York City on Dec. 24, 1924, at the Church of the Messiah in New York City, by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes.

A new subdivision has been opened near San Francisco, in San Mateo county. It has been named "Belle Monte." And the advertising matter says it is "The Carmel of the Peninsula." Perhaps we should be thankful for the free publicity.

Ernest Schweninger and Lee Gottfried are still on friendly terms, notwithstanding frequent violent quarrels incident to the solution of Pine Cone cross-word puzzles. We understand much mazuma has changed hands concerning the spelling of simple words.

Ralph Davison Miller, wife and daughter have returned from southern California, where they have been spending a month. Mr. and Mrs. George Koch, who accompanied them south, also have returned. The young lady who left here Miss Miller, returned Mrs. Cruthers. Congratulations!

An entirely original entertainment, conceived, written and produced by a group of Carmel misses, is to be presented at Arts and Crafts Theatre toward the end of this month. Some of the girls who will take part are: Moira Wallace, Wilna Bassett, Virginia Burton, Ann Greene, Vivian and Florence Edler, Gwynne Willner and Anne Clute.

COMPULSORY AUTOMOBILE LIABILITY INSURANCE

This subject will undoubtedly receive considerable attention at the hands of future law-making bodies. It is a subject deserving of serious consideration but it will be seized upon by advocates of state socialism as a vehicle for inaugurating their schemes of public ownership of industry.

There may be sound reasons for the state requiring automobile owners to carry liability insurance to protect the public in case of accidents, but there is no sound argument for demanding that the state go into the liability insurance business in order to furnish such protection.

Compulsory automobile liability insurance operated without state fund interference but entirely through the agency of recognized insurance companies is termed an unqualified success as operated in Switzerland.

The fact that in a number of states an insurance fund is maintained in connection with workmen's compensation insurance, is no excuse for extending the system which is in itself contrary to American ideals of government.

Let the state pass its laws protecting workmen or the public and provide what damage they shall be entitled to in case of injury. Then let the state see that these laws are complied with through the channels of private business.

It has all the regulatory and police power at its command. If it is not capable of enforcing its laws and regulations, it is not capable of operating business or industry. If it is capable of enforcing its laws and regulations, it is not necessary for the state to operate business or industry.

Let legislators and law-makers beware of new schemes to put the state into business.

SPECIAL PRIVILEGE OR EQUAL TAXATION?

An eastern bond house specializing in government bonds has issued an exhaustive statement showing why this type of bonds should be tax free. After reading it all over one is impressed with the fact that the arguments presented are largely in the interest of the holders of tax-exempt bonds and not in the interest of the taxpayer who must dig up exhorbitant taxes in order that the income from billions of these bonds outstanding may go absolutely tax free.

The statement claims that taxation of the income derived from public bonds would cause a higher interest rate that would have to be paid by every one.

At the present time the difference in the interest rate between tax-exempt bonds and taxable bonds of standard issues is stated by "The Bond Buyer" to be only about one-half to one per cent. Public bonds could always demand a lower rate of interest than private bonds because public bonds are the safest form of investment and stand as a mortgage against all the property in the district where they are issued.

Which is the worst: To have a possible slight addition in interest rate divided up among 110,000,000 people or having nearly 100,000,000 people paying millions in increased taxes in order that a small minority which owns billions of public bonds, the income from which is tax-exempt, may escape tax free? A democracy will survive on a basis of equality and equal taxation, not by building up special privileges and tax exemptions for a few.

HOME ON HIGH

IT isn't such an awful bad stretch, that uphill pull from Monterey to Carmel, but it's a long and deceptive grade which forces some of the $3,000 "jobs" to drop back into second. But almost any old Chevrolet will take it on high and make no bones about it. And the NEW Chevrolet—I want to tell you about it.

New VALUE—with its success based on selling quality at rock-bottom price. The NEW CHEVROLET has finer quality than ever before.

New CHASSIS—from radiator to rear axle, new quality features which you would expect to find only on higher priced cars.

New BODIES—of even greater beauty and comfort than before. The open models have many added refinements. The bodies of the closed models are by Fisher.

New FINISH—in beautiful shades of the wonderful and enduring Duco which retains its color and lustre indefinitely, withstanding the severest usage.

And above all, you have POWER—dependable, abundant, more probably than you will ever need. It is the best motor buy of 1925—an article which I won't have to "alibi" and apologize about once I have taken your money.

JUST KIDDING

Being the Semi-Serious Musings of Carmel's Own Sam Pepys

NEXT MONTH, unless we miss a guess, we may look among the Pine Needles or Society Items for choice bits like the following:

Frederick Bechdolt is having his boots polished in Salinas this week, having been picked for jury duty.

***

That green Chandler with the sunburned top seen flying down the grade toward Monterey yesterday forenoon is the property of Arthur Shand, Carmel realtor, on his way to Salinas. Arthur is a-jurying this week.

***

"Hello! Is this Fred Leidig's woodyard?" * * * * "What have burned biscuits got to do with the delay in gettin' that oak wood over here?" * * * * "Fred's got to make another batch, has he? Where's Clara?" * * * * "Jurying, eh? Well, get it over soon's you can. Goo'-bye."

***

A meteor fell from the sky one day;
The night wind howled mid fury;
But George Beardsley noted none of this
While a-sittin' on the jury.

***

Charles Delos Curtis is cooling his feet in the corridors of the County Courthouse in Salinas this week while exchanging notes with Byron G. Newell, one of Carmel's seven leading grocers. Charles D. and Byron G. constituted one-sixth of a jury in a case tried yesterday by Judge Treat.

***

Mrs. W. L. Overstreet and Mrs. Bernice O. Warren will powder their noses in Judge Fred A. Treat's court room in Salinas this week, having been selected for jury duty. This is a little tough on Editor Overstreet of the Pine Cone—having to get out the paper and feed "Brownie" and write the editorials, and all that sort of thing, and with no wifely assistance.

***

Citizen Herbert Heron, Seven Artist and Man of Muse, will run off his iambic footage this week, not in the Court of the Golden Bough, but in the Court of the County. He's on the jury.

If they follow Pacific Grove courtroom fashions over Salinas way this month it is more than likely that to the ears of Earl Percy Parkes, Lindsey E. Payne and Phil Wilson, Jr., will come the click of crap dice and the rattle of Chinese dominoes. For they're three of twelve good men and true.

OLD LADY BULLETIN of San Francisco is peeved to the extent of one editorial and one cartoon over the report that a Pacific Grove courtroom was used for mah jongg and craps while the jury was deliberating. Why, they ask, was the playing of these games permitted? That's easy. The gang couldn't very well get their polo ponies into the room. Would the Bulletin have been moved to wrath had the judge, the witnesses, or any of the spectators been advertisers? Or were they jealous because the mah jongg set used—an exhibit in the case—was not one of the premiums given by the Bulletin for nineteen or more new subscribers to that paper? We suggest that the Bulletin attend to the purity of the courtrooms on its own peninsula. On this glorious and law-abiding one of Monterey we shall play pinochle or parcheesi or polo when and where we choose, and without asking the Bulletin to countenance our indoor or outdoor sports. All San Francisco comes down here to play, anyway, and now that the bottle is forbidden by law, why spoil the holidays of those who escape "from civic revelry to rural mirth" by dictating to them where they shall do their mah jongg and cross-words?

THERE IS no truth in the reports—

That Ray Todd has purchased a tractor;
That three Carmel playwrights have been elected members of the French Academy;
That "Doc" Hollison will pitch for Eddie Maier's Vernon nine this season;
That Cabbages & Kings, Ltd., insists on settlements in pounds sterling, shillings and mere pence.
That Carmel will pass an ordinance forbidding the wearing of knickerbockers in the business zone.

IT OCCURS to us after watching our marshal do his stuff, that as "Britannia Rules the Waves," so Englund rules Ocean avenue.

QUESTION BOX

DOTTY B.—No; Barney Segal is not related to Barney Oldfield. Nor is Tom Bickle even a distantly removed cousin of Tom Mix. 2. You have a lot to learn. You should finish high school before contemplating any kind of a career.

CURIOUS KATE. We don't think so, Kitty. Insofar as we can learn, he wears them merely to air them. 2. We believe they go back into stock. 3. We, also, admired the Friday outfit. 4. Postage to Australia is five cents ouncely.

TEMPO.—The slow motion picture camera, we believe, was invented by a Pathe camera man some five years back. 2. The staircase used in "Shore Acres" was what is known as a practical one, a windfall from "The Rose of the Rancho." 3. Yes; we saw the original at the Boston Theatre with James Ahearn. 4. Greater. We agree.

KITCHEN LASS—Moisten the flaps of your envelopes with the raw white of an egg and they cannot be steamed open without detection. 2. We understand that there is a beauty parlor on Dolores street where one may obtain a permanganate wave.

WE SUSPECT that all do not approve of this Kolumn of Kidding. It's not deep enough; nor high; nor dry. 'Tis not Literature; nor passing seemly. In fact, we don't think very much of it ourself. We dash it off quickly, trippingly, and give freely of our thoughts, and with no recompense in mind save that have we a laugh, a helpful or amusing quip, a joyful jape, we find pay in passing it around. We leave the scholarly essays and masterly criticisms to other and more able hands. Those who must have "pate de foie gras" reading and artichoke literature need not seek our column. For we are purveyors of ham-and-bean thought, so to speak, with maybe an occasional filet of mignonette—perhaps a truffle dropped for good measure.

Here, for instance, is a green crumb of Roquefort for you: "Make it your business to become a dispenser of thoughts that build, that bring hope, and inspire calmness." If you don't like it, blame William E. Towne, for he wrote it and you can't quibble about it with

Short Bits Relating to The Seven Arts

Death of George Eliot's Husband

Says "For Art's Sake": Coincident with the premiere of "Romola," George Eliot's great novel, comes the news of the death of John Walter Cross, the husband of George Eliot, or Marian Evans, who died recently in London, at the age of eighty-four. He was English by birth, and began life as a banker, but came to America, and was in the United States through the Civil War period. On his return to London in 1869 he met George Eliot, and became secretary to George Henry Lewes. When the latter died in 1878, George Eliot married Mr. Cross in May, 1880, but she died within seven months. Then Mr. Cross devoted himself to his chief work, "The Life and Letters of George Eliot." Of late years he has been a contributor of outdoor sketches to various magazines.

Opera on One Record

Twelve-inch phonograph records that play for 100 minutes and reproduce whole operas by aid of radio loud speakers without the noise of needle scratching have been produced by Dr. Marx Hausdorff of Berlin, working along principles evolved by an English inventor. The production costs of the new record will be much lower than for the five-minute records, it is alleged.

A Page Memorial Library

A Walter Hines Page memorial library is to be established in the English Speaking Union when that organization obtains a permanent home in London. The library is to be built up from funds which remained over after the Page memorial tablet placed in Westminster Abbey had been purchased with contributions made by admirers of the late American ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Poet Delights Hearers

By Susan C. Porter

Richard Roe gave an interesting evening to Arts and Crafts last Monday, with a talk on modern poetry and readings from half a dozen members of the new school, beginning with Edwin Arlington Robinson.

Mr. Roe both cares and knows about poetry, and though the hall was too large for his intimate delivery, he must have felt his audience's interest and appreciation. Did he observe, we wonder, how they were quickened by his own extrrardinarily vital verse?

The club wants still more of him, and the hope is expressed that he may be pursuaded to give us another evening, in the small hall, with an informality that will permit us to interrupt, to challenge, to demand. For, to those who really care about poetry, there is nothing else in all the world so interesting, so important, so endlessly to be talked about.

Cartoonist Off on Long Jaunt

John T. McCutcheon, the well-known cartoonist, sailed on the Maui recently for Honolulu with Mrs. McCutcheon on a six-months' holiday that will take them into many queer corners of the earth. From the islands they will go to New Zealand and Australia, and from there to New Guinea, thence to the Orient. They plan to cross the Gobi desert and to return home through Russia and Siberia. The artist carries his own motion picture camera with him and will make many films of their trip.

The Pine Cone Press is a modern printing plant, keeping pace with every improvement in the craft.

Girls to Present Unique Entertainment

By Eavesdropper

I learned from neighbors of the Little Theatre that a group of girls were rehearsing for a vaudeville show. I thought I would investigate. The rumor was correct. As I watched the rehearsal progress I was convinced that East would be West. The large variety of nations represented were Holland, China, India, Italy and Russia. Holland gives a quaint old folk-dance and China contrasts with six geisha girls. India sends us a laughing nautch dancer. A famous prima donna, traveling incognito, hails from sunny Italy. She will condescend to sing for us in our theatre. I learned this from one of the girls. The diva won't arrive until the night of the performance. She is out here recuperating from her successful season in New York.

A young promoter of the new Russian drama will give her own interpretation of the wierd fantastic play, the "Hangnail," by Ziti Moroski.

Besides this we are transported to the romantic days when pirates roamed the seven seas. This number will be modernized into a snappy review.

There will be a piano solo by a rising young pianist. This is her premiere performance in public.

And to complete this list we will follow a flapper on her headlong flight to Mars. What Mars is like and who the inhabitants are will be seen if you come to the performance on next Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Another thing that should be remembered is that the girls are doing this wholly by themselves. They are writing the plays, directing and making the costumes.

Tickets will be on sale at the Palace Drug Co. in Carmel.

Carmel Artist Exhibits in National Capital

On the opening day of the exhibition of the work of M. De Neale Morgan in Washington, D. C., Mrs. Harry J. Coleman telegraphed the artist congratulations on the large attendance and great interest in the showing.

There are over forty pictures in the exhibition, including several fine examples in tempera and monotype.

This is a special exhibit given under the auspices of the Washington Art Club.

NEW CHEVROLET IS A HUMDINGER

For cars selling under $1000 it would seem as if this year Chevrolet has all its competitors lashed to the mast.

"In reality," states Paul J. Denny, Carmel representative, "Chevrolet has no competitors in its class worthy of the name. Chevrolet can give more for the money than others, chiefly because of quantity production. Ample capital permits of buying in enormous lots. Financial short-cuts, discounts for cash, make possible a finished car which, under other circumstances, might cost you almost double the money. The new Chevrolet has created a sensation in the automotive world—a world supposedly hardened against surprise and innovation. We will have a banner year for this marvel of cars. And those who put off making up their minds too long must expect deferred delivery."

Dr. Beverly L. Clarke of the local Carnegie establishment has gone to Tucson to take up his work at the coastal laboratory. Mrs. Clarke will make her home at the Vander Roest home during the doctor's absence.

Pine Needles

In the new offices of the Carmel Realty Co., R. C. DeYoe has hung several pictures by Edgar Wiethase, an American artist living in Brussels.

"Laughing Oaks" cottage is again cheerful. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Whitehead are in it. They recently returned from their summer home in Woodstock, Maine.

David Alberto, eminent Carmel pianist, with a distinguished reputation as an interpreter of Chopin, gave a concert at Stanford University last Tuesday evening.

W. H. Farley and wife have been in Los Angeles this week attending a cleaners and dyers' convention. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dummage accompanied them south.

Robert Ross, director of the Little Theatre in Berkeley, was here last week. One evening he was the honor guest at a dinner and bridge affair given by Mrs. Philip Wilson Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. (Otsy-Totsy) Hugh Comstock, having completed their doll house home amidst the oaks in northeast Carmel, are now planning to build a unique little studio.

Another prospective player in the Abalone League has been signed up. He arrived on the peninsula last Saturday morning. He's an eight-pounder and his sir name is Gottfried.

When you read this, Edward G. Kuster will have arrived in Honolulu. He and his wife will be back in Carmel in April, ready and eagar for a big season at the Golden Bough.

With a party of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hoffman registered at Highlands Inn last week. They are from Santa Barbara, in which city they developed the picturesque "Street in Spain."

Recent visitors here from Los Angeles were Frederick Graff and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cooke. They were guests of Mrs. Ida Theurer, who, rumor has it, contemplates building a hotel here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Blackman have as guest their daughter, Mrs. David O'Neill of St. Louis, wife of a poet. The O'Neills recently returned from abroad, where Miss Caroline Blackman was their guest.

Eloping honeymooners in town last week were Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brereton. The Mrs. was Miss Helen Eldridge, who made her home here for some months with her mother and brother about two years ago.

In honor of her house guest, Mrs. R. G. Fowler of Berkeley, Mrs. R. W. Covington gave a bridge party at Tranquility cottage recently. The guests were: Mrs. J. H. McKee, Mrs. H. W. Fenner, Mrs. G. L. Wood, Mrs. W. C. Watts, Mrs. H. M. Russell, Mrs. Grace Bates, Mrs. John B. Adams, Mrs. Payne, Mrs. George Clute, Mrs. and Miss K. Johnson.
